

Status of Mine Ban Treaty Transparency Reporting

Transparency Reporting Rate: 2001-2021

Only 45% of States Parties have submitted their transparency annual reports for calendar year 2020. This is one of the lowest compliance rates ever recorded for the treaty.

There has been a marked decrease in compliance with the transparency reporting obligation since 2004.

Transparency reporting is a treaty obligation (Article 7) and requires that all States Parties provide yearly updates, by 30 April, on steps taken to implement the treaty.

Deliver now: All States Parties must submit a transparency report every year!

Transparency reporting is a strong tool to monitor progress, challenges, and needs regarding the status of clearance and stockpile destruction programmes, measures to provide risk education and adequate assistance to victims, and the provision of international and national support.
